- I. Books For Africa's mission is to end the book famine in Africa. Specifically, the goals are:
- ◆ To promote literacy and improve educational opportunity for all children in Africa.
 - ◆ To eliminate the shortage of educational materials and books in Africa.
 - ◆ To strengthen African NGOs by increasing their capacity to engage their communities.
 - ◆ To reduce waste in U.S. landfills by shipping excess high-quality books to Africa and recycling those that are unusable.
 - ◆ To develop and support community volunteerism in U.S. and in African communities.

During the last three years, Books For Africa (BFA) has undertaken the following initiatives:

- ◆ Completed a grant to ship 49 containers (over one million books), valued at over $13 million, to 19 African countries, sponsored by the Sir Emeka Offor Foundation of Nigeria.
- ◆ Completed a three-year grant project to identify a French partner to supply relevant, high quality, new French books, and start shipping containers to BFA partners in Francophone Africa. Containers of new French books were delivered to Senegal, Cameroon, and Guinea.
- ◆ Currently shipping 660,000 books to Uganda under a project in collaboration with USAID.

BFA is the low-cost provider of books to the African continent. Since 1988, BFA has become the world's largest provider of donated books to Africa, sending over 32 million books to 46 countries. BFA obtains library, reference, and textbooks, sorts for quality, boxes by subject and level, and ships 40-foot sea containers throughout Africa for distribution to schools, libraries, NGOs and universities. BFA also sources Merck Manuals for medical and veterinary professionals, dictionaries, encyclopedia sets, specialty law and agricultural libraries, National Geographic map libraries, and refurbished computers on a cost-per-unit basis.

II. The 2014 Ebola outbreak in Sierra Leone, Guinea, and Liberia caused the governments to keep schools closed after the July-August 2014 break, which interrupted the education of an estimated five million children ages three to 17¹. As of 2015, schools have begun to reopen. However, the student enrollment is not at previous levels, due to the devastating effects of the Ebola crisis, including 16,600 children having lost a parent or caregiver to Ebola². During the last nine months, BFA was contacted by organizations in all three countries, who requested books to encourage students to continue learning during the school closings, and also attract them back to school.

The goal of this Books for Schools in Ebola Recovery Zones project is to provide large numbers of relevant books to communities that are recovering from the Ebola outbreak. The project will be carried out with organizations in Sierra Leone, Guinea, and Liberia that have recently received books and have remained in close contact with BFA during the Ebola outbreak, providing current updates on the situation and advising of the need for books and the ideal timeline for shipping. This project meets the community need for books to support students whose schooling was interrupted and who experienced hardship and stress during the Ebola quarantine. This project is unique in that it requires the cooperation of many diverse groups. These include large organizations such as BFA and BFA's French book supplier. It also includes African led non-profits such as Hope of Guinea and the Sierra Leone Book Trust, and U.S. government missions such as the U.S. Embassy in Liberia and the U.S. Peace Corps in Guinea.

Objective I: Each country will receive a minimum of 44,000 books.

Activities: Books For Africa will ship a minimum of two containers to each country.

Objective II: Each community will receive books relevant to their schools.

Activities: BFA will provide recipients with an order form for each container that allows the recipients to choose French or English books in subjects and levels they need.

Objective III: Each country will distribute books to the schools that were the most affected during the Ebola outbreak, and will support the recipient sites in usage of the books.

Activities: Recipients will submit a pre-shipment survey that specifies the communities they will target with the books, will choose the books based on the needs of the specific communities, and will perform follow up sites visits.

This $78,000 grant will ship 132,000 books, valued at $1.7 million, to a total of at least 60 schools. If each sites serves 500 people per year, this grant will supply 30,000 people per year with text, library and reference books. Our partners report that they do not have other affordable options for sourcing books, or relationships with groups similar to BFA. The Books for Schools in Ebola Recovery Zones project will be implemented and evaluated with the following three organizations that will receive the containers (two per country) at the local port:

Sierra Leone Book Trust's goal is to reduce illiteracy, promote indigenous writers and publishers, stock libraries and enhance quality education. BFA has shipped 10 containers to the Book Trust (see enclosed media report).

Hope of Guinea has cleared two BFA shipments of French books at Conakry port, making use of the books for their own orphanages and community libraries, and sharing one container with the U.S. Peace Corps for distribution to the rural communities that their Education Sector volunteers had been evacuated from during the outbreak (see enclosed media report).

The U.S. Embassy in Liberia requested a container shipment in the midst of the Ebola outbreak in order to encourage students to read at home. The distribution was managed by Liberians who are employed by the U.S. Embassy, including Mr. Ahmed Sirleaf, a former Minnesota resident (see enclosed media report).

Volunteers provide much of the labor, both in the U.S. and in the recipient countries. The BFA warehouses in Minnesota and Georgia engage approximately 1,000 volunteers each week. In the receiving countries, all of the time, storage, labor, and library set-up are donated by the recipients.

Outcome: Schools that lack books will receive ample, relevant books.	Impact: 60,000 people per year will have access to books that increase their literacy rates, support their studies, and inspire them to continue their education.
Outcome: Schools will be able to attract retain students in part due to having a library and books in the classroom.	Impact: Students will access books at no cost, and will matriculate to secondary and university levels reading at grade level.
Outcome: NGO and government entities in the capital cities will strengthen their relationships with the rural and underserved communities that receive books.	Impact: Rural and underserved communities will benefit by receiving free books, mobilizing their communities to help establish libraries, and receiving employees of the NGOs or government offices for follow up site visits, thus increasing potential for future collaboration.

Outcome success is determined by the number of Ebola-affected communities that receive books. If the recipient organizations desire more books after this project is completed, BFA will fundraise further. Outcomes will be tracked and reported by the three receiving organizations, including qualitative and quantitative data, such as written feedback from book beneficiaries, photos of the libraries that are established, and lists of where the books were distributed. The grant funds will be used for BFA's out of pocket expenses incurred in shipping six containers.

III. After this project, BFA will continue to work with the recipient organizations to meet their further need for books. Each of these organizations has already demonstrated ability to commit their own staffing and financial resources to the successful completion of their container projects. BFA is currently preparing a grant proposal to the Nichols Foundation to underwrite 10 containers of French books for Francophone Africa, and is coordinating fundraising activities with Hope of Guinea and Schools for Salone to support future container distribution.

IV. The BFA Board of Directors sets increased fundraising and container shipment goals for each fiscal year. Board decisions are decided by the act of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present, unless the act of a greater number is required by law or by BFA bylaws. Specific committees are the Executive Committee and those that arise for specific event planning, such as the Zanzibar Book Walk. This project will be administered by the following personnel:

Carole Patrikakos, Deputy Director, Books For Africa, holds a BA in French from the University of Michigan. She has interned in Senegal with PLAN International and the Fund for African Relief and Education. Carole previously worked as a Refugee Advocate and a French Library Coordinator.

Sallieu Turay, MA, founded the Sierra Leone Book Trust in 2002. He is Chief Librarian of the Sierra Leone Library Board.

Ahmed K. Sirleaf II, MA, MPA, is the Collaborating, Learning and Adapting Advisor at the USAID/Liberia Mission. Prior, Ahmed previously worked as an International Justice Program Associate at The Advocates for Human Rights in Minnesota.

Ibrahima Diallo founded Hope of Guinea in August 2011. He holds a BA in Business from the University of Maryland and a MS in Information Technology from Georgetown University.
