I. Organization Background

The Coachella Valley Housing Coalition (CVHC) is a tax-exempt 501(c)(3), nonprofit affordable housing development organization founded in 1982 with the mission to help low-income families and individuals improve their living conditions through advocacy, research, construction, and operation of housing and community development projects. CVHC housing developments serve farmworkers, migrant farmworkers, very low- and low-income individuals and families, homeless veterans, adults with special needs such as developmental disabilities, HIV/AIDS and/or other chronic illnesses.

For more than 34 years, CVHC has been building community by building cohesive neighborhoods through the Mutual Self-Help Housing program (where homebuyers build their own home) and by providing safe, decent and affordable rental housing in Riverside and Imperial counties in the southern California region. CVHC has a demonstrated track record for the production, stewardship, and long-term development of affordable housing. To date, CVHC has constructed more than 1,600 single-family homes and 33 apartment rental communities that provide affordable housing for more than 23,000 people. CVHC is nationally recognized, award-winning organization that has been named amongst the Top 50 Affordable Housing Developers in the country and has been the recipient of various noteworthy accolades. Every CVHC housing community is built with a solid commitment to partnerships, vision and extensive community planning.

For CVHC, the notion of home has always embodied the opportunity to grow and learn. It is clear that affordable housing is a vital foundation for economic stability. But for housing to be a true catalyst for opportunity that can change the trajectory of people's lives and livelihoods, CVHC must also support its youngest residents by providing access to early childhood education centers, after-school learning and recreation programs, financial capability for youth, provide access to computer technology and instruction, college scholarships, and a pipeline of other Community Services programs that both enrich and engage youth living in affordable housing communities developed by CVHC. Working in synchronization with other community-based organizations, CVHC strives to connect affordable housing with academic achievement.

II. Project Information

A) Statement of Need

The Coachella Valley Housing Coalition's after-school programs play a vital role in providing safe and accessible after school programs for children who need it the most. And recognizing that while a stable, safe and decent home holds enormous possibilities for low-income families striving to chart a more secure and hopeful future, children need more than housing to overcome barriers to success. To that end, CVHC offers the more than 3,000 children residing in its housing, access to after-school programs that provide tutoring, homework assistance, STEM-infused Lego robotics, financial capability, access to computer technology and instruction, organized physical play activities, arts, crafts, tennis instruction, and other enrichment opportunities that enhance their academic readiness.

B) Project Description

The after school programs are conveniently located where the children live, so working parents do not have to arrange transportation to and from outside programs and activities for their children. Additionally, CVHC's after school programs fill gaps that school districts and other community-based organizations are unable to fill due to lack of capacity, as only 5,061 after school spaces are available through local school districts for the more than 63,284 school-age children (source: Ed-Data).

C) Project Goals, Objectives, Activities, and Expected Outcomes

OBJECTIVE 1: Increase access to and participation in after school programs in an effort to reduce negative outcomes such as the likelihood of juvenile delinquency, exposure or participation in illicit activities such as drug use, vandalism, and other criminal behavior in children living in poverty.

ACTIVITIES: after-school STEM-infused Lego[®] robotics program, after-school programming, ballet folklórico dance instruction, Mariachi music instruction, financial capability for youth, Re-Think Your Drink[®], community gardens, tennis instruction, early childhood education programs, trips to view The Metropolitan Opera streaming live at a local theater, and other educational field trips.

OBJECTIVE 2: Provide the tools needed for children to advance to the next grade level and increase their motivation to achieve and have higher educational aspirations.

ACTIVITIES: Homework assistance, tutoring, and English as a Second Language classes.

OBJECTIVE 3: Provide access to computers and computer technology in an effort to bridge the technology divide. Children will use technology (computers, the internet and educational software) as tools for learning and to enhance their intellect, creativity and imagination.

ACTIVITIES: Computer technology classes featuring Microsoft[®] software applications and Typing Master Pro[®] typing tutor; and a Digital Media Arts program.

D) Timeline

The after-school programs operate within the community rooms at 11 sites, Monday through Friday from 3:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m., during the academic school year (36 weeks); and from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. during the summer program (9 weeks). The programs operate in the communities of Mecca, Coachella, Indio, La Quinta, Desert Hot Springs, Palm Springs, and Moreno Valley.

E) Target Population

The populations of children served by CVHC's after-school programs are also much more disadvantaged than their more affluent peers as they come from predominantly Hispanic households, are monolingual Spanish speaking with very low median household incomes, and low educational attainment. Many of the low-income families served by CVHC lack the financial, social, and educational resources that ensure their children realize their full potential that would set them on a positive life trajectory. One of every two students is learning English as a second language in Mecca and Coachella; one of every three students is learning English as a second language in Palm Springs and Desert Hot Springs; one of every four students is learning English as a second language in Indio and La Quinta. CVHC believes that the provision of after-school programs for children and families living in affordable housing communities is fundamental in helping them break the cycle of poverty and overcome barriers to success.

F) Projects in the Community

CVHC uses a model that facilitates the improvement of people's lives and livelihoods by using housing as a platform for human development. CVHC's projects in the community focus on:

- Cohesive Neighborhoods through the Mutual Self-Help Housing Program
- Safe, Decent and Affordable Housing (Rental and Homeownership)
- Economic Self-Sufficiency
- Personal Development for Residents
- Strengthening Resident Engagement
- Pipeline of Community & Resident Services offerings

G) Evaluation

The ultimate goal of the after-school programs is to increase the proficiency level of students in academic subjects in an effort to better prepare them to be successful in their future careers and close the achievement and technical skill gaps for economically disadvantaged students. The following evaluation metrics will be used to assess the effectiveness of the after-school programs:

- 1) Children enrolled in the after school programs will have an eighty percent (80%) attendance level as measured by attendance records;
- 2) Ninety percent (90%) of the children enrolled in the after school programs will advance one grade level as measured by administrative observations;
- 3) Ninety-five percent (95%) of the children enrolled in the after school programs will increase their computer technology skills as measured by curriculum quizzes/test scores.

H) Use of Grant Funds

Grant funds will be used to help develop the potential of disadvantaged children through the after-school programs. Children of disadvantaged backgrounds miss out on activities that may lift self-confidence, cultivate talent, improve social skills, increase engagement with school, and decrease the likelihood of risky or self-destructive behavior. Studies estimate that for every dollar invested in after school programs for at-risk youth brings a return on investment for taxpayers of $3 dollars – a figure based on the cost savings associated with remedial education, grade repetition, absenteeism, dropping out, crime, drug use, and teen pregnancy.

III. Project Future

CVHC dedicates funds the organization earns from the construction of affordable housing developments (its "developer fee), to help support the after school programs. Additionally, its Grant Writer will be responsible for fund procurement for the after-school programs. The developer fees coupled with other funding strategies will ensure program continuation. CVHC is highly committed to sustaining the after-school programs and the systems designed to support them.

CVHC has been successful in delivering high sustained program attendance and high year-to-year retention after school programs for over 24 years. CVHC believes that when children are engaged in learning, their behavior in school improves and their motivation to achieve and have higher educational aspirations increases. Participation in structured, extracurricular activities is more strongly linked to academic outcomes than study habits, family background or academic ability. Services will be rendered (at no cost to participants) through partnerships with the education sector and other community-based organizations in an effort to build systems that seek to make the most of public and private resources to provide widespread, high-quality, out-of-school time opportunities.

IV. Governance, Executive Leadership and Key Personnel/Staff Qualifications

A) Governance

CVHC is led by its Executive Director, Ms. Julie Bornstein, and is governed by a ten-member Board of Directors. The Board of Directors is accountable for corporate governance and ensures the health and effectiveness of the organization. CVHC's board, which includes residents of its housing, is made up of individuals who possess skills and expertise in finance, board governance, legal and accounting expertise, healthcare, education and more. CVHC's Board is comprised of diverse individuals whose unique life experiences, respective backgrounds and knowledge complement the organization and help advance its strategic goals.

B) Management

A team of four Executive Leaders also help direct and coordinate the day-to-day operations of the organization. CVHC is comprised of a workforce of fifty (50) employees. Mr. Joe Mota is the Community Services Coordinator for CVHC, who has extensive experience in implementing programs, working with youth, the community, and other community-based organizations that serve children and families. Mr. Mota and other staff members oversee the vast pipeline of Community Services programs that support children from early childhood education through higher education.
